MARXISM & SOCIAL REPRODUCTION theory

The Revenge of Everyday Life is a one day conference that will bring together anti-capitalists from a range of perspectives to discuss how capital is changing the world around us, and how to fight back.

We'll be exploring one of the most exciting recent developments in Marxist ideas – social reproduction theory – and how it can illuminate the connections between exploitation in the workplace and oppression in the wider social world.

If you're involved in fighting against racism and sexism, but also interested in socialist ideas about class, inequality and material power, this event will help develop a unified political framework that can bring these struggles together and make our movements stronger.

The Revenge of Everyday Life takes place in central London on Saturday 3 November, and is being organised by rs21 – Revolutionary Socialism in the 21st Century.
