FIGHTING TRANSPHOBIA

Transphobia is on the rise in Britain and around the world. It's being spread by the far right, ruling political parties, and even by liberals and socialists in unions and movements. The fight for trans liberation goes beyond just countering bigotry, misinformation, and oppression where we come across it - we need to build power within and across movements, and put forward positive demands.

The Tories are trying to stoke up bigotry against trans people and migrants to bolster their support. Labour is swinging hard to the right on the same issues. Neither are offering real solutions to the problems facing the huge majority of people.

£4 in person, or plus £1 p&p at rs21.org.uk/fighting-transphobia

This new pamphlet provides a practical and theoretical guide to fighting transphobia. It explores the relationships between trans liberation, sex, gender and class struggle; how the right-wing gender politics is being regenerated through transphobia; practical struggles against transphobia in trade unions, housing and environmental campaigns; and the struggles within the trans liberation movement.
